SYNOPSIS

This film is a poignant, sometimes sad, sometimes painful, sometimes humorous, often absurd story of a multiple journey: the journey of loss as the director's mother Aida struggled with losing herself to Alzheimer's disease, but finding solace in her repeated "returning" to the Yafa and Palestine of her youth; the journey of the loss of a parent; and the ultimate return journey back to Yafa where Aida would finally find rest and be herself once more.

Close to four years after Aida's passing away, the director's friend and colleague Tanya who lives in Ramallah came to visit Beirut. When she heard about Aida's wishes and yearning for Yafa, Tanya suggested that she herself carries the ashes back. The film accompanies director Carol Mansour as she engineers a way to return her mother to Yafa in search of eternal rest and peace for her. A return that is aided by an unlikely set of friends and strangers all coming together to facilitate what should have been a simple journey. This journey is at the same time very private and personal, while resonating with hundreds of thousands of Alzheimer's sufferers and their families as well as hundreds of thousands of Palestinian refugees awaiting their return home.

This film is a tribute to the lost past of the director's family, an attempt to restore part of both an individual and a collective memory, a poetic nod and affirmation, and a call to action to all exiled Palestinians to defy the structures forbidding from returning to their homes, even after death.

GLOBAL SCREENING EVENT: March 18 2024

In early 2024, we decided to challenge what was becoming a series of rejections from international film festivals. To break the blockade that was rising in our face and in the face Palestinian stories and the Palestinian narrative in general, we decided to take matters into our own hands. We reached out to colleagues, filmmakers, organizations, activist groups, and universities to arrange a Global Screening event. The response was overwhelming and resulted in holding scores of screenings all around the world!

On March 18th, 2024, on what would have been Aida's 96th birthday, "Aida Returns" made its way to more than 30 countries and 46 venues, bringing audiences together to witness Aida's journey of return to Palestine.

This map locates all the venues across the globe that participated in this event.
